

20260506_On The Belief that They are Gods

As I continue to produce all of this philosophical work to describe the 'gods' or 'forces' of the world that guide and influence people - both historically and presently,

I want to point out that this spying figure that is looming over my every movement and every letter that I type on my keyboard is representing itself to me as being 'this god' or 'that god' as it continues to 'express' itself in my life.

To be clear, we did not begin at this level of intrusion (at least not visibly).

This all began with text messages from the Donald Trump campaign for President.

From that source, began a symbolic 'communication' using the chimes of the text messages. It was, in a sense, a training mechanism to influence my behavior.

Initially, I thought that their team was attempting to gather me into their fold - as an asset. I was being led to believe that I should 'go there' or 'do this' and 'we will notice' - and their team did notice by continuing to send their ongoing 'signals' and 'signs' into my life.

One specific example that I can source to you is a particular video:

(Whether this is the exact video or not, I have not fully investigated, but it was exactly like this video - the dog is attempting to play fetch with an immovable statue)

If you follow along closely enough, these are the types of 'messages' that get 'mirrored' back to you in your life.

Their team begins to 'communicate' various messages and images to your life to 'get you to think about' this idea or that idea.

To me, I thought, okay, these are 'nudges' or hints at where to go and how to get involved.

Well, these end up in a maze of self-defeating behaviors and turn from text message chimes about what is 'visible' on your computer or phone screen, then into what is 'audible' in your room or near your technology.

Okay, this is still inside of the realm of 'normal' governmental spying or intrusion that we all kind of 'accept' in our lives from the criminals that are positioning themselves behind law enforcement badges.

But, here is where the scene turns different.

Once I passed through these various gates of 'following' closely enough to be 'nudged' here or there, these messages begin to notify you of 1) what personal details that they know about you; and 2) that they will kill you if you expose these secrets.

Okay, sure. These are governmental spies, I have nothing to hide, and I'm not some unfair 'snitch' that discloses secrets of people that have confided in me.

I would response, okay, so you have investigated me, that's great - I have no worries. Let's go!

Well, apparently I wasn't getting the messages. So, after continuing to 'press' forward with their 'knowledge of my life, they began pushing themselves further into reality and exposing themselves from being an influential source of 'chimes' or 'text messages' and into an influential source of humans surrounding our daily movements.

At this time, and in this same way, their team began to reveal that there technology was not just to spy on our words, our audio in our home or even video through our cameras, THEY DISTINCTLY BEGAN PROVING THAT THEY CAN MONITOR US THROUGH A LIVE VIDEO FEED - however that is produced and by whatever technology would enable that to happen.

In the same way, they would identify themselves to me as 'reflecting' my daily life - and attempting to 'influence me' to move this direction or that.

Their intrusions have now reach levels that are in no way agreeable to any 'agent' or 'employee' or any reasonable person whatsoever.

So, again, there is nothing that I can do about this. Except, soon after, they began damaging our property, continuing to more aggressively threaten to kill me, and threatened to set our house on fire on multiple occasions.

Okay, so now any 'deal' or agreement that I would have had to 'protect' the secrecy of this operation is completely off the table - get fucked, losers.

I didn't sign up for your extortion game. You called us to save our country from criminals and you went beyond expressing power and into criminally damaging my Homelife for your own personal amusements and gains.

But, things don't end there, world. Ultimately, their text messages and digital messages became so intrusive that I ditched my phone, stopped going to their websites, 'opted out' of their political messaging platforms, and generally removed their ability to cause daily influence in my world.

So, they moved closer and began driving the vehicles past my house every single day - 24/7 in order to contiue pressing their illegal and threatening messages into my home.

So, here we are now 5 years deep into this ongoing intrusion into my life.

And I am writing this message publicly exposing that the Donald Trump team is using their positions of power to threaten an innocent attorney that fought for the good people of our county to have their votes accurately counted and for their voice to be heard in the legal process.

Instead of being rewarded by the team that called me to help them, they enticed me, threatened me, and now will not leave my presence while they act out 'plays' around my life where they pretend to be 'gods' or my God - in this world.

In conclusions, I want to express just how far gone these human beings have traveled in their justifications and mindset that has allowed them to create this ongoing bod of horrors over our tiny life.

As representatives of the United States of America, now, they are pretending to be 'god' and are attempting to threaten me on a daily, hourly, and minute by minute basis simply to protect themselves from their own guilty conscience.

I am tired of wirting now - I have a life to live.

I used to live a normal life before they called me to 'help' Save America.

Apparently, Make America Great Again is all relative to who is viewing the attributes of 'greatness'.

The people that currently inhabit the offices of the White House have provably shown that their version of 'greatness' involves recreating a Nazi regime and a surveillance state of illegal oppression.

I guess, to them, that is 'great' - except they all appear miserable in their efforts to enforce and protect it.

America is an addict. America is addicted to spending money that it cannot afford.

America is addicted to threatening others.

America is addicted to illegally spying on people in order to keep up the defenses that it holds against being held accountable for its own addictions.

America is a bad seed, a black sheep, an addict that needs rehabilitation.

Unfortunately, there isn't anyone in this world that can help it.

Like a heroine addict in anyone's family, we all know where their life ends up - the gutter.
